DOMINION OF CANADA

The important event of the month as affecting trade and commerce was the presentation of his

Save The Forests! Everyone L

1—Forests provide the raw material for one of Canada's greatest industries. 2—A beautiful stand of stately red cedars in B. C. 3—Fire fighting equipment, 7000 gallons of water and a half a mile of hose, on C. P. R. cars.

Indifference, ignorance and carelessness, are the malevolent forces which result in forest fires and only a thorough education of the public to the great need of forest preservation can eradicate these evils. Until the general public understands the full significance of the loss occasioned through forest fires unnecessary destruction of thousands of acres of fine timber will continue. The menace to the financial health of Canada through forest fires has not been fully appreciated by the vast majority of the people. And Canadians especially should be vitally concerned in the welfare of their forests.

The various phases of the lumber industry in Canada represent an invested capital of approximately five hundred million dollars. The associated industries give employment to thousands of men the year through. Further, out of every five dollars the lumber industries pay back to the country more than four dollars for the wood, the labor and the taxes involved in the enterprises.

In the province of Ontario alone, about 20,000 men are employed in the bush while 10,000 are employed in pulp and paper mills. The capital invested in these industries in Ontario is estimated at about $175,000,000. The organizations employed by the Ontario provincial government for forest fire protection cost $3,000 a day. Yet with all this forest fires consume twelve times the amount of lumber which is the life of these huge Canadian industries. In the province of Quebec the value of the lumber cut, including pulpwood, exceeds $40,000,000 annually.

In co-operation with the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, the Montreal Publicity Association has given generous leadership in drawing public attention to the meaning of Forest Conservation Week, which is held annually in the United States and Canada from April 19 to 25. Scores of public bodies all over North America have joined in the effort to stimulate public interest in the forests and means for their preservation.

When a forest burns everybody loses. The destruction of a wooded area means just so much less of a natural heritage for the generations to come. During Forest week the object is to impress this important fact on the public.

The Canadian Pacific Railway has been doing all in its power to prevent fires by maintaining fire fighting apparatus of the most up-to-date pattern. In order to eliminate the possibility of fires being started by passing trains, locomotives on the Canadian Pacific Railway lines are examined at the end of each trip and great care is taken to see that ash pans and front ends are in perfect condition. Each spring the right of way is cleared with care of all scrap and inflammable material.

Notices dealing with fire prevention and protection, issued by the C.P.R., the Dominion and provincial governments and by various fire prevention organizations are posted in all stations and other buildings where they will be effective.

The mechanical equipment maintained by the Company for fire fighting consists of a number of tank car units and hose, kept ready for immediate operation at convenient points. Each unit consists of two tank cars each of 7,000 gallon capacity, equipped with powerful pumps and about one mile of hose.

The fire-fighting forces maintained by the Canadian Pacific Railway co-operate to the fullest extent with the provincial forces and the other fire-prevention organizations, and do everything possible to assist in the fighting of fires which are at all adjacent to their territories.

ANNUAL MEETING EDINGLASSIE CHURCH

The Annual Meeting of Edinglassie church was held after service on Sunday, April 18th. Mr. P. H. Perry in the chair.

The minutes of last annual meeting were read and accepted.

The financial statement was read and showed a small shortage of the amount that had to be raised for 1926.

Messrs Perry, Murry, Reinhart, and Petrie were elected for the church board for 1926.

Mr. Petrie was re-elected Sec. Treas for 1926.

After the meeting nearly every one present stated to the Sec. Treas the amount they would pay toward the church for 1926, which was greatly appreciated.

annual Budget by the Minister of Finance. It cannot yet be definitely determined with preciseness the results of the changes made in tariff and taxation. The Honorable Mr. Robb estimates from his proposals a reduction of $25,000,000 annually in taxation; the pre-war postage rate of 2 cents having been restored; a slight enlargement of the list of articles exempt from sales tax made; the stamp tax on receipts abolished and income taxes in many instances cut down in rate as well as simplified in character of levy. The income tax rate upon corporations (Continued on page five) still she hesitated. In her there were going on certain processes she could not have predicted an hour earlier.

"I ought to thank you," she said. "I do thank you."

His utter silence made it hard for her. He could see her hesitation, which made it hard for him, coveting sight of her always, loath to leave her.

Now a sudden wave of something, a directness and frankness born in some way in this new world apart from civilization, like a wind-blown flame, irresponsible and unpremeditatedly as it had over his. She was a young woman fit for love, disposed for love, at the age of love. Now to her horror, the clasp of this man's arm, even when repelled in memory, returned, remained in memory! She was frightened that it still remained—frightened at her own great curiosity.

"About—that"—he knew what she meant—"I don't want you to think anything but the truth of me. If you have deceived people, I don't want to deceive you."

"What do you mean?" He was a man of not very many words.

"About—that!"

"You said it could never be."

Wagon appeared. The middle of his suaged her own spite of her bitter she was glad that he though he hardly spoke to all.

"Look!" he exclaimed at last, drawing back the flap of the wagon cover. "Look at the rain-bow!"

Over the cloud banks of the rain-wet sky there indeed now was flung the bow of promise. But this titanic land did all things giganticly. This was no mere prismatic arch bridging the clouds. The colors all were there, yes, and of an unspeakable brilliance and individual distinctness in the scale; but they lay like a vast

"No. If it could, I would not be stopping here now to say so much."

He stepped closer, frowning.

"What is it you are saying, then—that a man's a worse brute when he goes mad, as I did?"

"I expect not," said Molly Wingate queerly. "It is very far out here. It's some other world, I believe. And I suppose men have kissed girls. I suppose no girl was ever married who was not ever kissed."

"What are you saying?"

I wanted you to know the truth about a woman—about me. That's just because it's not ever going to be between us. It can't be, because of that matter in Mexico. If it had not been for that, I suppose after a time I wouldn't have minded what you did back there. I might have kissed you. It must be terrible to feel as you feel now, so ashamed. But after all—

"It was criminal!" he broke out. "But even criminals are loved by women. They follow them to jail, to the gallows. They don't mind what the man is—they love him, they forgive him. They stand by him to the very end!"

"Yes, I suppose many a girl loves a man she knows she can never marry. Usually she marries someone else. But kissing! That's terrible!"

"Yes. But you will not let me make it splendid and not terrible. You say it never can be—that means we've got to part. Well, how can I forget?"

"I don't suppose you can. I don't suppose that—that I can!"

"What are you going to say? Don't! Oh, please don't!"

But she still went on, strangely, not in the least understanding her own swift change of mood, her own intent with him, vis-a-vis, here in the wilderness.

"While we were walking down here just now," said she, "somehow it all began to seem not so wrong. It only seemed to stay wrong for you to have deceived me about yourself—what you really were—when you were in the Army. I could maybe forgive you up to that far, for you did—for men are—well, men. But about that other—you knew all the time we couldn't—couldn't ever—I'd never marry a thief."

The great wistful regret of her voice was a thing not to be escaped. She stood, a very splendid figure, clean and marvellous of heart as she was begrimed and bedraggled of body now, her great vital force not abated by what she had gone through. She spread her hands apart and looked at him in what she herself felt was to be the last meeting of their lives; in which she could afford to reveal all her soul for once to a man and then go about a woman's business of living a life fed on the husks of love given her by some other man.

He knew he had seen one more miracle. But, chastened now, he could, he must, keep down his own eager arms. He heard her speak once more, her voice like some melancholy bell of vespers of a golden evening.

"Oh, Will Banion, how could you take away a girl's heart and leave her miserable all her life?"

The cry literally broke from her. It seemed in her own ears the sudden voice of some other woman speaking—some unaccountable, strange woman whom she had never seen or known in all her life.

-- Of Interest To Farmers

IMPROVING THE SUNFLOWER

The favour into which the sunflower has grown in recent years as a forage plant has led to consideration at the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa if its improvement. This effort so far has been largely confined to inbreeding. In general the results of the inbreeding, says Mr. R. I. Hamilton, of the Forage Crop Division in describing the work that is in progress, approximate the findings in corn. The first three years showed a marked increase in the uniformity of the strains concerned, and at the same time a reduction in size of the plants. But, unlike the inbred strains of corn, a number of the sunflower strains, while becoming extremely uniform, did not lose any of their former vigour. Some of the tallest, leafiest and highest yielding rows are strains that have been under test for five years. Theoretically, says Mr. Hamilton, it would be possible to combine into an inbred strain more desirable growth factors than are possessed by the average of an open fertilized population. This possibility appears to be substantiated, ed, adds the writer, by findings with inbred sunflower strains. The encouraging results secured with corn are being paralleled and the future of the work is most promising.

RAISING DAIRY CALVES

(Experimental Farms Note)

At the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe, the dairy calves are taken from the dam the first day and pail-fed whole milk for the first month beginning at the rate of from eight to twelve pounds per day depending on the size and strength of the calf the amount fed being divided into two feeds. At the beginning of the second month a change is gradually made to skim-milk, and at the end of the fifth week skim-milk alone is fed at the rate of fifteen pounds per day, gradually increasing to twenty pounds the maximum, at six month of age. Whole oats or oat chop chop should be fed as soon as the calf is drinking properly beginning by dropping a handful in the pail just as the calf finishes the milk, thus teaching the calf to eat readily. Well cured alfalfa hay or good upland hay good green feed should be applied daily. Well sun-dried may be fed at about month in small amounts gradually increasing to five pounds per day at about six months. For best results the skin should be fed up to about months of age.

soon as the calf is eating well, a mixture of two parts chop and one part wheat bran should be fed beginning with half pound per day and increasing to five pounds per day at six months. All feed changes and increases should be made gradually. By following this general feeding practice Holstien heifer calves at this Station can be developed to a weight of 800 lb. at one year and bull calves frequently reach 1000 pounds at this age. All calves are turned out in the open every day for exercise and water, excepting extremely cold or stormy days. Calves are not turned to pasture until the second summer.

CONVENTION OF WHEAT POOL SIGNERS

At a convention of Wheat Pool signers of sub. district G.I. held in Edgerton on April 10th a motion was proposed and carried that prospective delegates from each of the five shipping points be nominated.

The following are the five that received nominations, viz. A. A. Fischer to represent Irma, J. G. Lewis to represent Wainwright, F. M. Ford to represent Heath, E. Herbert Spencer to represent Edgerton and H. Foreman to represent Chauvin.

CATTLE EXPORTS UP

Cattle exports during the week ended April 15th once more reached a high total. For the first time in several weeks the number exceeded 2,000 head, bringing the total for the year up to 25,844 head, as against 20,068 for the corresponding period of 1925, and 15,636 for 1924. So far this year shipping companies have received in excess of $500,000 in revenue from the cattle trade.

GOPHER DESTRUCTION

A home prepared mixture which is giving good satisfaction at the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Saskatchewan is prepared as follows:

Dissolve 4 ounces of strychnine in 3 quarts of water to which add one quart of vinegar. Keep warm on back of stove for 12 hours then add enough water to bring the solution to a gallon. Mix this with 50 pounds of wheat.

If possible use a tub which will not allow the moisture to leak away. Stir well at least three

NATIONAL ARRANGES NEW TOUR TO EUROPE

THE rapidly increasing popularity of personally conducted tours has led passenger traffic officials of the Canadian National Railways to organize an educational and historical tour to Great Britain, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and France. For the past four years this company has conducted a summer tour from Winnipeg and other western cities to the Pacific coast via Prince Rupert, the trip being made by special train with stop-overs arranged at all points of interest en route. With an especial appeal to teachers and other professional men and women, this tour has met with increased success year after year and numerous requests have been made to the company to arrange similar tours through other districts. Every year more and more of the traveling public are realizing that the way to get the most out of their trips is to take advantage of these personally conducted specials. Canadian National passenger officials, therefore, have been busy for some months arranging a 43-day personally conducted tour to Europe, to be operated by that company in connection with the Cunard, Anchor-Donaldson line. Special effort has been made to keep the cost as low as possible without lowering the standard of travel. Western Canadian passengers for this tour will leave Winnipeg on July 7 in special cars on the Continental Limited to join the balance of the party at Montreal, whence they will sail on the S.S. Athenia, July 9. The return trip will be made from Liverpool on the S.S. Aurania, sailing August 13. The photographs above are of a few of the famous spots included in the itinerary of this overseas tour. At the top is St. George's Chapel and Windsor Castle. At the left the Kursaal Garden, Interlaken, and below La Basilique de Montmartre, Paris. At the right, is the S.S. Athenia and below Tom Tower, Christ Church College, Oxford. Other stopping places on the trip will be Glasgow, Edinburgh, Leamington, London and Paris, where some free time will be given for shopping and individual sight-seeing, The Hague, Bruges, Antwerp, Brussels, Amsterdam, Marken, Versailles, Geneva, Montreux, Interlaken, Meiringen, Lucerne and the battlefields.

The weekly Radio Health Talks of the Red Cross Society, broadcast over C F A C through the Kindness of the Calgary Herald, will come to an end this month with an address by the Hon. Irene Parlby, of Alix, entitled "The Home." This paper was written for the Child Welfare Convention in Calgary and delivered there by this gifted and popular speaker. The broadcasting of Radio Talks has been a and the Red Cross is in receipt of many letters shewing the value these addresses are to women in the country. As material for afternoon talks at Women's Institute meetings or U.F.W.A. gatherings there is much demand for these papers, and any one writing to the Alberta Division will receive them free of charge. The subjects deal with the training of children, their mental and moral development.

The following is an interesting story in connection with the Radio addresses. A firm of Publishers in New York, The University Society Inc., hearing of the good work being done by the Red Cross of Alberta in connection with these weekly lectures to women over the air, have kindly sent to the Radio Lady, C F A C a gift of a valuable set of books, entitled the "Treasury Series" in twelve volumes for the use of the Red Cross Radio service. This complete literature set will be of immense value to the Health Education and Information Bureau, and it is expected that in the fall when the Red Cross hopes to resume the Air addresses, selections from the books will be broadcast in connection with the educational and inspirational work amongst women.

The Radio Lady will be pleased to send material for health reading to any correspondent free of charge and will also supply literature helpful in connection with child welfare addresses.

TEST CASES ON OIL STOCK SELLING

To test the power of the provincial public utilities board to control oil stock selling by companies with dominion charters, two test cases have been taken against oil companies in Alberta, by the Attorney General's Department, on the basis that stock selling was undertaken without securing permission of the utilities board.

President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has asked approval of the shareholders for the construction of two new passenger vessels of the type of "Montcalm," "Montclare," and "Montrose," to be available for service in May, 1927, and five freight vessels of 8,500 tons, with a sea speed of about 14 knots, also to be ready for 1927.

During the past season 1,235 moose and 3,508 deer were killed in New Brunswick. Of the former 207 fell to the guns of non-resident hunters and 617 of the latter. In the same year animals killed for fur included 1,567 raccoon; 6,017 skunk; 18,314 muskrat; 5,410 foxes; 9,470 ermine; 177 martin; 2,823 mink; 105 otter; 67 fisher and 192 bear.

The Canadian champion two year old Ayrshire heifer, "Princess Beatrice" 3rd, owned and bred by the Nova Scotia Agricultural College, has another record in supply of milk and butter fat. ations and joint stock companies is reduced from 10 p.c. to 9 p.c. and all surtaxes done away with. In respect of customs duties, the important change is the reduction of rates upon motor vehicles. In the case of passenger cars valued at retail at not more than $1,200 the reduction is from 35 p.c. to 20 p.c. under the general tariff, and in the case of all other motor vehicles from 35 p.c. to 27½ p.c., with corresponding reductions in the case of cars entitled to entry under the preferential tariff. Another interesting announcement is that after January 1st, 1927 goods to be entitled to entry under the preferential tariff must be imported direct from a British country into a sea or river port of Canada, the purpose of this enactment being to build up Canadian ports.

The Finance minister was able to present a favourable balance sheet in respect of Dominion Finances and to point to an unusually large expansion of foreign commerce during the recently ended fiscal year. There was a surplus of revenue over expenditure of nearly $34,000,000 in the year's operations, a reduction of net debt of $22,353,000 and a marked increase in the operating profits of the Canadian National Railways, these having amounted to $30,443,000 in the calendar year of 1925 or about $13,000,000 more than in the preceding year.

The foreign trade of Canada continues to mount both in volume and value. In the year ended March 31st, this commerce reached the very considerable sum of $925,500,000, of which $1,330,000,000 was made up of exports and $927,000,000 of imports, the favorable balance thus being $402,695,000. So large a credit in the external trade of the year has been a potential factor in restoring Canadian currency to par.

Prairie Provinces: Wholesale business is steady, with increasing demand for building materials, hardware and kindred lines. Retail trade has been adversely affected by continued cold weather. Collections are moderately satisfactory. The wheat market has been steady, with prices advancing. There is a large acreage to be plowed in Western Canada, and whilst there is little or no snow in some districts and farmers are already on the land, unfavorable weather has held up operations.

Saker's expect their first carload of salt to anywhere around May first. Prices will be lower than ever before. Make arrangements.

PRESENTATION

A very enjoyable evening given G.W.V.A. in the form of a smoking concert was held in the Club rooms on Saturday April 10th in honor of Comrade Secretary C. Smith, on the occasion of his marriage and return from California.

Comrade Commander G. M. Saul Saul on behalf of the officers and members of the local command presented Comrade Smith with a fine set of carvers, as a token of appreciation and to commemorate the event.

The following members contributed towards the program: Com. Beattie: Com. C. Ryall: Com. G. M. Saul: Com. D. R. Saul: Com. W. J. Cubitt: Com. J. Cubitt: Com. C. J. Smith.

"FRESHMAN" HE

Harold Lloyd, whose picture comedy "Hot Water" of nearly a year ago offers "The Freshman" his newest and at the same time his last picture under his contract with Pathe, the company whose banner he started at the sheer heights of greatness.

"The Freshman" will be shown next Monday at Chauvin in the Basement of the R. C. church and on Tuesday at Edgerton.

In it Harold Lloyd is known as Harold Lamb. He's a "Grandma's Boy" type of youth going to college with the lofty ambition of wanting to be popular. He craves the reputation of being a good sport and a regular fellow. It's a natural and human desire, but one that gets scant sympathy from his callous fellow students who razz and jazz him until he's dizzy and dazed with attention. He thinks it's popularity, but one day, when his cup seems brimming over with happiness, for Peggy has just told him that she loves him, he learns that he's only the college boob!

Upper—Pine Rapids Camp at French River.
Lower left—The result of two hours' fishing at French River. Lower right—Now for breakfast.

By Ozark Ripley

There is a fascination to fishing new waters hardly equalled by the number of fish which are taken. Because every stream and lake has its peculiarities, a certain amount of study of local conditions is necessary. Successful fly and bait casting is study, especially when applied to bass and trout fishing. The man who devotes most time to studying a new lake or stream comes back home not only with fish but a perpetual mental picture of the resort he visited in the summer.

If everywhere the bait or fly caster went he took fish just as he pleased then the real spice of the visit to the waters would be lost. Nobody appreciates anything in this world which is easily obtained. The real creed of sportsmanship is solving new countries, new waters and deriving most pleasure from the unexpected. Streams and lakes are living things and deport themselves accordingly. They may be full of all kinds of game fish and yet yield us nothing until we bow to local conditions and agree that they need sensible study.

The first musky I ever took on a fly rod was near Pine Camp rapids on French River in Ontario, the people vowed it could not be done. There were long trials before I succeeded and yet a little study brought some facts to my knowledge. Late in the evening I found that some of these big boys had a penchant for dropping over the little, swift fall and preying on the wall-eyed pike which were so abundant below. The very first white feather-minnow I cast after becoming possessed of this hunch connected me with a nice one that gave me a merry half hour following up and down the rapid before victory came to my credit.

In the lower Nipigon last summer where the river ends its course in Nipigon Bay I was singularly fascinated by the clear, swift water and the poor results I had with ordinary trout and salmon flies, then every once in a while I could see one of the immense red-spotted fish rise along the east bluffs below the Canadian Pacific bridge. I knew for quite a while that these big trout were by nature minnow feeders; their special favorite was the little local chap harboring among the rocks, the cockatouche. But what pleasure would there be in taking one of these kingly brook trout with bait? Study of the river gave me an idea. Then for a lure I attached a quarter ounce snap swivel sinker to a feather-minnow made of Plymouth Rock rooster hackles. That is how I took my first five and one-half pound brook trout last summer in the Nipigon.

There are bass lakes and bass lakes, bass streams and bass streams. This applies to the far South as well as the far North. Studying them carefully is what pays. I had to observe and study, and right off my solution came to me that the bait or fly fisherman wants to fish in the very places to which the worm fisherman never ventures, and wait until he sees bass feeding in these parts before he presents his artificial offerings. As far north as Maniwaki in Quebec to the big mouth waters in Louisiana the same thing prevails. Right away is elucidated the necessity for studying waters, the habits of the denizens and everything thereabouts which will make or mar the sport.

A GOOD TOWN

Going the rounds of the newspaper is advice regarding "Simplicity of a Good Town" credited to an "unidentified exchange." It says much in a few brief paragraphs and is worthy of reproduction as follows:

Put a peg of prosperity into your community by staying with it.

Always greet your neighbors with a grasp of confidence.

Criticize in the spirit of God-speed.

Say a good word if it hurts. Remember that those who insist on hanging themselves will do it if given enough rope.

Give your neighbor a right to an opinion as long as he keeps it to himself.

Discuss questions involving your better welfare instead of arguing with them.

Apply the Golden Rule regardless of consequences.

Back your churches and relative affiliations. You will feel better and besides are setting a good example for the young people.

Give the young people plenty of pleasure but see that you know what they are doing.

Failures reflect on the entire town. See what you can do to keep your neighbor on top of the water. Don't let him drown.

Let's have more handshakes and arm-in-arm conferences with a good will parting. It adds to day's events.

Let's break the shell and step out. The world is wondering what we are going to do next. Let's show 'em.

THE COVERED WAGON

"Your—heart?" he whispered, now close to her in the dusk. "You were not—you did not—you—"

But he choked. She nodded, not brazenly or crudely or coarsely, not even bravely, but in utter simplicity. For the time she was wholly free of the woman coquetry. It was as though the elements had left her also elemental. Her words now were of the earth, the air, the fire, the floods of life.

"Yes," she said, "I will tell you now, because of what you have done for me. If you gave me life, why shouldn't I give you love—if so I could?"

"Love? Give me love?"

"Yes! I believe I was going to love you, until now, although I had promised him—you know—Captain Woodhull. Oh, you see, I understand a little of what it was to you—what made you—" She spoke disconnectedly. "I believe—I believe I'd not cared. I believe I could follow a man to the gallows. Now I will not, because you didn't tell me you were a thief. I can't trust you. But I'll kiss you once for good-bye. I'm sorry. I'm sorry."

Being a man he never fathomed her mind at all. But being a man, slowly, gently, he took her in his arms, drew her tight. Long, long it was till their lips met—and long then. But he heard her whisper "Good-by," saw her frank tears, felt her slowly, a little by a little, draw away from him.

"Good-by," she said. "Good-bye. I would not dare any more, ever again. Oh, Will Banion, why did you take away my heart? I had but one!"

"It is gone!" he cried savagely. "No other man in all the world shall ever have it! Molly!"

But she now was gone.

He did not know how long he stood alone, his head bowed on his saddle. The raucous howl of a great grey wolf near by spelled out the lonesome tragedy of his future life for him.

Quaint and sweet philosopher, and bold as she but now had been in one great and final imparting of her real self, Molly Wingate was only a wet, weary and bedraggled maid when at length she entered the desolate encampment which stood for home. She found her mother sitting on a box under a crude awning, and cast herself on her knees, her head on that ample bosom that she had known as haven in her childhood. She wept now like a little child.

"It's bad!" said stout Mrs. Wingate, not knowing. "But you're back and alive, it looks like we're wrecked and everything lost and we come nigh about getting all burned up, but you're back alive to your ma! Now! now!" That night Molly turned on a sodden pallet which she had made down beside her mother in the great wagon. But she slept ill. Over and over to her lips rose the same question:

"Oh, Will Banion, Will Banion, why did you take away my heart?"

CHAPTER XV

The Vision

The great wagon train of 1848 lay banked along the Vermilion in utter and abject confusion. Organization there now was none. But for Banion's work with the back fires the entire train would have been wiped out. The effects of the storm were not so capable of evasion. Sodden, wretched, chilled, their goods impaired, cattle stampeded, all sense of gregarious self-reliance gone, two hundred wagons were no more than two hundred individual units of discontent and despair. So far as could be prophesied on fact apparent, the journey out to Oregon ended in disaster almost before it was well begun.

Bearded men at smoking fires looked at one another in silence, or would not look at all. Elan, morale, esprit de corps were gone utterly.

Stout Caleb Price walked down the wagon lines, passing fourscore men shaking in their native agues not yet conquered. Women, pale gaunt, grim, looked at him from limp sunbonnets whose stays had been half dissolvent. Children whimpered. Even the dogs, curled nose to tail under the wagons, growled surlily. But Caleb Price found at last the wagon of the bugler who had been at the wars and shook him out.

"Sound, man!" said Caleb Price. "Play up Oh, Susannah! Then sound the Assembly. We've got to have a meeting."

They did have a meeting. Jesse Wingate scented mutiny and remained away.

"There's no use talking, men," said Caleb Price, "no use trying to fool ourselves. We're almost done, the way things are. I like Jess Wingate as well as any man I ever knew, but Jess Wingate's not the man. What shall we do?"

He turned to Hall, but Hall shook his head; to Kelsey, but Kelsey only laughed.

"I could get a dozen wagons through, maybe," said he. "Here's two hundred! Woodhull's the man, but Woodhull's gone—lost, I reckon, or maybe killed and lying out somewhere on these prairies. You take it, Cale."

"Price considered for a time.

"No," said he at length. "It's no time for one of us to take on what may be done better by someone else, because our women and children are at stake. The best man's none too good for this job, and the more experience he has the better. The man who thinks and time.

"This," said he, "majority rule on this?"

Silence. Then rose Ohio, slowly, a solid man, with three wagons of his own.

"I've been against the Missouri outfit," said he. "They're a wild bunch, with no order or discipline to them. They're not all free soilers, even if they're going out to Oregon. But if one man can handle them, he can handle us. An Army man with a Western experience—who'll it be unless it is their man? So Mister Chairman I move for a committee of three yourself to be one, to ride down and ask the Missourians to join on again, all under Major Banion."

"I'll have to second that," said a voice. Price saw a dozen nods. "You've heard it men," said he. "All in favor rise up."

They stood, with not many exceptions—rough-clad hard-headed men of the nation's vanguard. Price looked them over soberly.

"You see the vote, men," said he. "I wish Jess had come, but he didn't. Who'll be the man to ride down? Wingate?"

"He wouldn't go," said Kelsey. "He's got something against Banion; says he's not right on his war record—something—"

He's right on his train record this far," commented Price. "We're not electing a Sabbath-school superintendent now, but a train captain who'll make these wagons cover twelve miles a day, average."

"Hall, you and Kelsey saddle up and ride down with me. One thing sure, something has got to be done, or we might as well turn back. For one, I'm not used to that."

They did saddle and ride—to find the Missouri column coming up with the intention of pitching blow, at the very scene of the massacre, which was on the usual Big Vermilion ford, steep-banked on either side, but with hard bottom.

Ahead of the train rode two men at a walk, the scout Jackson, and the man they sought. They spied him the man on the black spanish horse, found him a pale and tired young man, who apparently had slept as ill as they themselves. But in straight and manly fashion they told him their errand.

Charles Reddock, housemover of seemed to be an impossible task of moving sixty houses over mountain roads from Bankhead to Banff. In forty days he moved thirty-eight of the houses six and a half miles.

Exports from Canada for the month of February were $87,512,147 while imports were recorded at $70,- 908,980 for the same period. For the twelve months ending February 28 last, exports reached a value of $1,297,744,683 while imports were fixed at $911,107,055.

One of the largest business transactions recorded in the West took place here on March 11th last when the Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers mailed approximately 190,000 cheques amounting to a total of $37,000,000, to members of the wheat pool.

The rapid development of the fish oil and fish products industry on the Pacific coast this year may necessitate the fitting up of three coastwise vessels as tankers to carry oil from the reduction plants. Last year one vessel found this method successful.
Fish reduction plants, it is estimated, will produce 10,000 tons of
